Program

(Denver, March 24 2009) Cortado, a global leader in mobile applications, announced that the company passed Enterprise Solution Certification for use in the nationwide wireless data networks by AT&T Mobility GSM(TM)/GPRS (NYSE:T).

“As we continue to add new features to our application, this certification confirms Cortado’s data integrity, application security, and wireless transmission efficiency,” said Roger Guerrero, Sales Manager Cortado Enterprise Solutions. “Future Cortado customers can find our solutions in the AT&T Certified Solutions catalog and can be confident that our application goes beyond AT&T usability guidelines.”

Cortado’s solutions include the Cortado Corporate Server, which extends the smartphone directly to the company network. Without involving a PC, users can access information available on the network, including all files and folders, directly from their smartphone. The Server includes Cortado Explorer, which features file management functions such as copying files from the corporate network to a smartphone (or vice versa), storing e-mail attachments via ‘Save As,’ and retrieving and sending files to a selected e-mail address via “Send to me.”

Output options include printing and faxing any document to any Bluetooth-enabled or network printer or fax machine.

Cortado’s solutions, paired with a smartphone, increase productivity for a mobile workforce. Cortado’s platforms include BlackBerry, Symbian OS, Windows Mobile. iPhone support is currently under development. While Cortado is truly a multi-vertical solution, its main verticals include construction, financial services, and professional services.
