

Set Up an Exchange Mailbox Directly from Your iPhone

With Hosted Exchange from Cortado, users can now set up and use an Exchange account with mobile e-mail within minutes using their iPhone.

(Berlin/Denver, September 2009) The mobile business expert Cortado is the first provider to offer iPhone users around the world the ability to use the popular Microsoft e-mail applications immediately from their mobile device. The cumbersome PC detour is eliminated. Users can set up their exchange account directly from their iPhone and can try out the Cortado mailbox with mobile e-mail, calendar, and address book synchronization free for 30 days.

Fewer and fewer freelance professionals are operating their own mail server environment and are instead opting for the inexpensive and maintenance-free choice of Hosted Exchange, as Cortado has already provided for years with growing success. Now Cortado is releasing another improvement for Apple iPhone users: Mailboxes no longer have to be set up and configured on a PC; instead, it can all be done directly from the iPhone or iPod Touch while on the go.

When the user visits the iPhone-optimized Cortado Website and registers for the 30-days-free push mail account, he or she will receive easy-to-follow step-by-step instructions for setting up the mailbox with his or her mobile device.

After the free trial period has ended, the user may then continue using the account for only $ 11.98/9.98 Euro per month.

The package is based on Microsoft Exchange Server 2007, includes a 2 GB mailbox, and lets you continue using your previous e-mail address. Also includes: personal address book and calendar, online access using Outlook Web Access, ActiveSync direct push synchronization of e-mails, contacts, tasks and appointments.
